INTRODUCTION AND OVERVIEW

Welcome. In this course, you will represent one client for the entirety of the semester. You are a public defender, and your client has been charged with a crime. You will need to conduct initial research into your client's case, effectively communicate your research findings with your client, and advocate for your client (both in written and oral form). There are two primary goals for the course: (1) sharpen the legal research and writing skills you learned last semester; and (2) develop foundational habits that will help you become a more effective lawyer. While the lectures, non-graded exercises, and graded assignments will primarily focus on legal research and legal writing, we will also explore a host of other topics such as the pitfalls and benefits of generative artificial intelligence, identifying logical fallacies, and managing the professional and personal demands of being a lawyer. Buckle up and enjoy the ride.

As a final note, you will take a mock Multistate Performance Test (MPT) during one class period in April. The MPT is not graded.

TIMELY SUBMISSION OF ASSIGNMENTS

You are responsible for submitting assignments at the proper time and place. Assignment submission deadlines are contained in the “Course Schedule” section of this syllabus. Anyone who fails to submit an assignment on time or in the correct manner without prior permission will receive a 10% deduction per day late. Any assignment that is more than five days late will automatically receive a failing grade.

I will grant extensions if called for by exceptional circumstances. To receive an extension, you must request it at least 24 hours in advance of the assignment deadline.

GUIDELINES FOR COURSE WORK

First, you must adhere to the citation form required by the Bluebook. All written assignments will have their own unique formatting requirements. Points will be subtracted from your score if you fail to follow the formatting and citation requirements.

Second, the Vermont Law School Honor Code governs your work and conduct in this class. Whenever you use the words or ideas of another writer, as you will inevitably do in legal writing, you must acknowledge the original source using a citation. If you use the exact words of another person, use quotation marks and cite the source. Cite the source even if you put another person's ideas in your own words. This rule covers cases and statutes and applies to every sentence. Citing a source once in a paragraph when the source is mentioned or otherwise relied on in every sentence is unacceptable. Never copy from any written material without acknowledging the source. You will also violate the Honor Code by using a current or former student's work or by looking at materials that I have asked you not to look at. You must receive permission from me before receiving assistance on your writing from any source, including ASP mentors and the Writing Specialist. Except as directed in class, under no circumstances may you receive assistance on the substantive law, your writing, or any other aspect of any assignment from any faculty member, attorney, judge, or other non-VLGS community member. Unless otherwise specified, assignments must be your own work product. Failure to follow these instructions violates the Honor Code.

Finally, this class requires active and responsible class participation. Consequently, you have an obligation both to yourself and to your classmates to come prepared to class and to arrive promptly for all scheduled classes, meetings, and oral arguments.

CLASS ATTENDANCE

Class attendance is mandatory. Students with more than four absences will receive a failing grade for the course.
